Duval County's Supervisor of Elections and the City of Jacksonville's Emergency Operations Center Coordinate Early Voting and COVID-19 Testing at Two Sites

JACKSONVILLE – Supervisor of Elections, Mike Hogan, shared that two Early Voting sites, the Legends Community Center and the Oceanway Community Center, will serve as both Early Voting locations and COVID-19 test sites, from Monday, August 3, through Sunday, August 16.

“My staff and I have already met on site with the City of Jacksonville’s Emergency Operations Center (EOC) staff and testing officials at the two sites,” Supervisor Hogan said. “We have coordinated access for the voters and those citizens who are visiting the site to be tested. We will have plenty of signage and barricades to make sure the two groups are separated and will not cross paths,” Hogan added.

At the Legends Community Center, located at 5130 Soutel Drive (32208):

Voters will be in the gymnasium in the back of the facility. They will use the rear parking lot and have access into the gymnasium from Soutel Drive. Citizens who are at Legends for COVID-19 testing will be in the front of the complex. They will use the front parking lots, and they will have access to their own driveway. Signs will direct both groups to the correct areas.

At the Oceanway Community Center, located at 12215 Sago Avenue West (32218):

Two different buildings will be in use. The Community Center (in the front) will be used by voters. The Senior Center (in the back) will be used by citizens who are coming for COVID-19 testing. Both groups will have their own parking areas. Barricades and signs will be in place to keep the two groups separated and on track for access to their particular building.
